Paris, December 31.

UPON a Misunderstanding between the Prince and Princess of Conti, the latter left the Hôtel of that Name on the 25th Instant in the Morning, and went to the Palace of Luxembourg to the Princess Dowager of Bourbon her Grandmother, where she continues still, refusing to return to the Prince her Husband; but Endeavours are using to reconcile them, and 'tis said the Chancellour M. d'Aguisseau is employed on that Account. Yesterday Morning the Duke d'Ossuna had his publick Audience of Leave of the King, to which he was conducted with the same Formalities as were observed at his first Audience. It is reckoned the Visits which he is to make, and to receive in Return, from the Princes of the Blood and the Ministers, will still take him up some time, and that he will hardly be able to leave Paris before the End of next Month. A Courier arrived here some Days ago from Spain with Advice, that the Duke of St. Simon was fallen ill at Madrid of the Small-Pox; but at the Departure of the Courier was judged to be out of Danger. His Son had likewise been very ill, but was on the mending Hand. It is said the Pope has written to the King, complaining of a Latin Letter sent to him by seven Bishops of this Kingdom concerning the Bull Unigenitus, which Letter was not only faulty in its Form and Contents, but also contrary to the King's Orders, by which it is forbidden to publish any thing on that Subject. The Cardinal de Rohan is set out from Rome on his Return into France. The following Extract of the Advices relating to the Plague received by the Court to the 24th of December, has been communicated to the foreign Ministers.

The Gevaudan. The Duke de Roquelaure in his Letters of the 10th and 12th of December, writes, that the Contagion is ceasing at Marvejols. Nuejols and the Village of Ras near Chirac have no sick or dead. Some Inhabitants whom the Cold had forced to return to their Houses before they were perfumed, perished: A new Order had been published, forbidding others to return in the like Case, on Pain of Death. The Number of the dead at three infected Places of the Gevaudan, is 4696, that of Persons recovered 1008, and that of sound Persons who had escaped the Infection 4386: The Town of Mende is not included in this Account. No new Place had received the Contagion since the 2d of December. From the 28th of November to the 2d of December, none had died or fallen sick at Genouillac, which had lost by the Plague 98 Persons. St. Paul la Coste, Bournans, Concoules and Salindres, continue in the Condition they were. M. de Rothe in his of the 8th, 10th, and 12th of December, confirms in general the Decrease of the Distemper in the Gevaudan: It is still malignant at St. Genaix. A Man who died at Montarent near Usez having been viewed, was found to be a Drunkard, and that his Death was occasioned by a Fall from a Mule. The three Hamlets or Villages lately infected near Marvejols, are Tirmet, Muxes, and Ras. The Bishop of Alais, in his of the 5th and 8th of December, writes, that the Distemper is not violent there; it was reckoned that in all to that Time 144 had died there, half of which were Children, Servants of the Infirmaries, or Buriers of the dead. He was giving Orders for purifying the Houses which had been infected; and hoped that by the 1st of January they would be the most healthful in the Town. On the 8th there were 28 sick in the Suburbs, 9 or 10 of whom were in great Danger:
